Miss Ethel R. Birkmaier last Friday at Rancho La Playa gave a dinner in honor of Mrs. Dutton's birthday. An elaborate special menu was served. Among the many friends present were William Ritschel, Mrs. Charles Silent, Colonel and Mrs. Dutton, Mrs. R. W. Coleman, Mrs. D. L. James, Mr. and Mrs. Barker, George L. Birkmaier.

The Annesley residence down at Mission Point has been offered for sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Selby C. Oppenheimer, the Impressario to whom San Francisco is indebted for the Mary Garden Chicago Opera Company of last winter, are motoring down from San Francisco tomorrow afternoon, for Madam Pavloska's concert here.

A party of Middle Western tourists were recently visiting the Mission. They passed one historic spot after another. At last the guide in a voice fairly trembling with emotion said, "And last of all we stand beside the spot where our great leader, our beloved Father Junipero Serra died." From the crowd came a nasal long-drawn high pitched query: "And what seemed to be the trouble?"

John B. Jordan, lessee of the Pine Inn, spent Monday and Tuesday in Oakland.

Prof. H. D. Gray and family, who have been here for several months, have returned to Stanford.

Carmel City taxes this year, as heretofore, will be $1.00 on each $100.00 of assessed valuation. With the large number of improvements the total income should be about $7,000.1

Herbert Hand staged a nice little spill over in Monterey one day last week. Herb crawled out, righted the machine, and proceeded over the hill. Too bad! That stunt would have looked good on our Ocean avenue.

E. G. Fitzhamon, correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin, who has been supplying their special golf articles for Del Monte and Pebble Lodge tournaments, with his wife were Pine Inn guests for a few days last week.

With the departure of Miss Ida Fullager, Miss Mabel Kimball and Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Croney, the last of the summer colony of San Jose Jose school teachers have left us. Mrs. Kimball and Miss Lillian Fullager were with the party.

Dr. and Mrs. Rebec spent about ten days recently as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Schreff. Dr. Rebec is a Doctor of Philosophy in the University of Oregon in Portland. They are planning a European tour shortly, and after that will probably become regular residents of our summer colony.

Miss Ann Nash and Miss Dorothy Bassett are pioneering the north-east section of town. They are building a cottage, doing most of the work themselves, too, of the Old English type. While not "vacationing" with the hammer and saw the young ladies are occupational therapy instructors at Hahnemann hospital.

Mrs. E. E. Lonabaugh has returned to Carmel from her home at Sheridan, Wyoming.

Secretary Argyll Campbell announces that Carmel Country Club membership certificates will soon be issued.

C. W. Bowen, one-time Carmel resident, is now managing the George Wharton James tour, with headquarters in Pasadena and Los Angeles.

City Treasurer L. S. Slevin has requested the trustees to designate an attorney with whom he can advise regarding the validity of certain city bills.

The new fire siren is not in place yet. The reason is that the manufacturer sent the wrong motor. The right one is now on the way from Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kenneth Turner are expected back from New York next month. They will occupy their own cottage recently vacated by Ellerbe, who have gone away after a year here.

Madame Pavloska in her four seasons with the Chicago Opera Company has sung with Madame Melba, Galli Gucchi, Mary Garden, Geraldine Farrar, John McCormack, Muratore, Titta Ruffo, and the charming Pavloska shared the honors and won remarkable critical recognition.

Dr. Alfred Burton's new residence, "Casa de Comedia," on San Carlos street, is finished and the family are moving in this week. The house is "L" shaped, with a large living room especially adapted to comedia, extending along the entire front of the house, and a charming chalk patio with the sleeping quarters opening off of it, in the rear.

In compliance with the request of the promotion committee for the union of Christian colleges for women of the Orient, India, China, Japan, the importance of these colleges and their urgent needs will be presented at the meeting of Carmel Missionary Society, Wednesday, September 28, at 3 p. m., at the Presbyterian Chapel. At the same meeting echoes from the Missionary Educational Conference, recently held at beautiful Asilomar, will be heard. A large audience is much desired.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schreff left Sunday for their home in Eugene, Oregon. Mr. Schreff fills a chair in the Fine Arts Department in the University of Oregon. While in California this summer he has divided his time between Berkeley, where he has been doing instructing in the Summer School, and Carmel. Mr. Schreff has a number of pictures of Carmel scenes, and in the near future is to give one man exhibition of his paintings in Seattle. These pictures are to be almost exclusively Carmel subjects. Mrs. Frank Barrows was a guest of the Schreffs.

His 200 paintings are on view at the Palace of Fine Arts, San Francisco, until October, 15th.

Pastor of Church Urged to Remain

Rev. and Mrs. Fred Sheldon left on Tuesday for the annual conference of the M. E. Church at San Jose. The report of the local church for the past year has been a most encouraging one—the average attendance has increased from forty one in the first quarter to eighty one in the last. The treasurer reported all bills paid except one not presented, and a balance in the treasury. The building has been redecorated, the roof repaired and a new carpet laid. A new heating plant is being installed.

The Church League, founded by Rev. S. C. Thomas, made up of all regular attendants of the church of whatever denomination, so much appreciate the work of Mr. Sheldon, that at their meeting last Sunday morning they extended to him a call to remain in Carmel as permanent pastor.

The benevolences of the year have increased one hundred per cent, and money has been donated for a memorial window. It is hoped other donors may come forward, so that in time the church will become an ornament to Carmel.

Louis Verneuil the French dramatist, actor, artist, is constantly conflicting with the censor. He writes very clever comedies and it seems to the writer that he vastly represents not only the social life of the French but of any country of modern times, for life in France as shown in the comedies of Verneuil consists principally of cuckoldry infidelity and seduction. In these plays no self-respecting husband dares show himself without a mistress. No young man must have any other occupation or profession than that of seducer. If he can be shown corrupting a married woman under her stupid husband's nose—so much the more amusement.

In "Pour Avoir Adrienne" the "young man" appears in full vital regalia. He has only one virtue, constancy. He is faithful to one married woman. Throughout three acts of more or less farcical intrigue he pursues the lady with amorous persistence. The chase takes on diverting aspects. The author chastens and purifies his theme, he deludes us into accepting his decisions as simple justice—the naughty old husband deserves his fate, the lover merits his reward, deceit becomes virtuous, blackmail an honorable necessity, the full flood of wit washes down all the naughtiness.

What can be said in a serious vein about such a play? It is a trifle, an idle, frivolous piece of chaff—and just as popular as can be.

Frayne Williams, formerly director of the famous Abbey Theatre in London, and one of the foremost of the English authorities on Celtic drama, will be the guest of honor speaker of the University Fine Arts Society on the afternoon of September 20 in the Hotel St. Francis, San Francisco.

With this appearance of the noted English dramatist, the University Fine Arts Society begins its 1921-22 season.

Williams has directed some of the most notable of the modern plays and has a first-hand acquaintance with many of the men and women who produce the world's plays at this time. The gifted Lady Gregory and John Synge, the poet Yeats and the sulphuric Bernard Shaw are personal friends and co-workers of Williams. Naturally, any criticism of their plays would have a certain flavor and definiteness that would elude the rigidity of their writings.

Sir Arthur Owiller-Couch is president of The Village Drama Society in England. This organization was formed for the purpose of helping the out-of-the-way folk of England produce plays that otherwise they would never see. The society not only furnishes the reading lists and courses of study, but offers material aid by sending directors and costumes and entire productions to the places that demand them.

The Sydney (Aus.) Bulletin remarks, concerning American plays and American prohibition, as follows: "Prohibition is making itself felt in American stage productions, if not in the movies. Photoplays continue to exhibit more or less 'festive' boards, with an occasional happy drunk in evidence, but the spoken drama is becoming painfully dry. In 'Oh Lady, Lady,' our latest musical comedy from Uncle Sam, there is never the sign of a drink the whole long evening, nor do I recall that one is mentioned. This is the more remarkable, considering that the curtain rises on the hero's wedding day, that during the evening another wedding takes place, and that yet one more is booked for an early date. In the old days the stage would have been swimming in cocktails and fizz."

Student players of St. Mary's College will present "Dante, the Wing Bearer," a three-act sexcentenary drama, at the Columbia Theater, San Francisco, on the evening of September 25, amidst special settings built from drawings of the art department of the same institution.

The prime motive of the presentation of the drama, according to the dramatic committee of the college, is to honor the memory of the great Italian master, and for this reason special scenery, including a scene in Florence, with its bridges, battlements and archaic type and scenery in the third act, which will be among the largest ever constructed in the west.

For the second act the velvet drape will be used for the background, depending upon lighting effects to show the change in the mood of the characters in the scenes. This same method, it is stated, was used by John Barrymore in his New York revival of "Richard III."

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

The Heel of Achilles—by E. M. Delafield. The author delights in probing into the hearts of her characters, exposing every petty sham, every apparently innocent pretense, every scheming plan and carefully-concealed vanity. Lydia Raymond is introduced as a child twelve years old, smugly reflecting with great satisfaction over the fact of her being an orphan—her satisfaction due to her increased importance in her lonely state and being the center of much attention which she desired. This child, sophisticated and analytical at twelve, was appraising her aunts and uncles, managing them while they seemed to manage her; her grandfather alone baffled her. The old cynic saw through his clever grandchild and chuckled over her in private. He took pleasure in instructing her in points of conduct: "Always let the other people talk about themselves," was one of his maxims, and she tried it with good effect. So she goes on, as honor student at school, as accountant in a shop, as the author of a successful novel, as private secretary and in due time as the wife of a country clergyman. Always apparently demure and yielding, but always managing to have her own way—"Situation grabber," her grandfather called her. Lydia's daughter Jennie suffered most from the iron glove on the soft hand of her mother, and it was she who nearly upset Lydia's firmly established complacency.

A sophisticated piece of fiction is this book, carefully wrought, and in a restricted sense, quite true to life, depressing in its cold disillusionment, although quite sincere. "The Heel of Achilles," that point of vulnerability that gives the book its title, is left to the judgment of the reader as to how far it succeeded in discommoding Lydia's well regulated life.

The Shadow of the Astral, by Louis Plante, was clearly written from a sense of duty, the author believing that he has a vital message for humanity.

The story describes the spiritual development of a man which is brought about by a means of a series of adverse experiences. The hero is a Sicilian professor of languages at the University of Medina, who, from his early youth has speculated much on "the mystery of being" and desired to penetrate the mysteries of the universe.

The author is evidently a metaphysician, more interested in the devotional than in the speculative side of philosophy, believing that we may develop spiritual truth which when awakened is as much to be trusted in its sphere as the organs of sensation. The development of this unique story includes a short mystery play in verse, which possesses quite a bit of merit.

Carmel to Welcome Splendid Singer

Madam Irene Pavloska, who is to sing tomorrow evening at the Arts and Crafts Hall, has been four seasons with the Chicago Opera Company, appearing with many great artists, and shared honors and won remarkable critical recognition. She sings her way right into the hearts of her audiences. She is young, full of animation and magnetism, possesses a voice of wide range and color, and, added to this she has a clarity of enunciation that makes her work of surpassing beauty.

Madam Pavloska is enthusiastic in coming to Carmel to sing, as she has friends at Pebble Beach, Carmel and the Highlands.

Miss Alice Seckles, who will accompany Madam Pavloska, writes that she is delighted to be in the "play end" once more. Before Miss Seckles became associate impressario with Selby C. Oppenheimer she was on the concert stage as pianist, and is a thorough musician. Her Matinee Musicales at the St. Francis Hotel, in Berkeley and in Oakland have been both socially and musically successful.

The house is almost sold out for tomorrow's concert. The only tickets unsold at the Pine Cone office tomorrow morning will be sold at the hall box office.

Miss Seckles and Madam Ann Dare three years ago produced the first pantomime on the Pacific Coast. Miss Seckles arranged the music for Ann Dare's story, "Pierre, the Prodigal." It ran three weeks. The part of Pierre was played by an actress of the Copenhagen Royal Opera House.

Writing to Madam Ann Dare, Irene Pavloska says:

"Am looking forward so much to my renewing my acquaintance with you, and giving my recital at Carmel next Friday. It might be of some interest to know that in my third group of songs (Folk Songs) the composer of "Little Bateese" is only a youth of twenty-two years old. Judging by this exquisite number, I think he gives promise of a great future. Seneca Pierce is his name, and up to six years ago the boy was struggling even to obtain one piano lesson a month. Today he plays most beautifully."

The "exquisite number" will be sung here.

Coast Tires

Honest to Goodness

Manufactured in our new and complete factory, Oakland, California, are the highest quality tires now on the market, with unequalled records for service and durability.

We use only the most carefully selected high-grade rubber and fabric in the construction of our tires. Our special compounds make the tread extremely tough and elastic and gives Coast Tires unlimited wearing qualities. The carcass is built up of layers of the best long staple cotton fabrics thoroughly impregnated and coated with a high tensile elastic rubber which gives added life to the tire. The pure gum cushion between the carcass and tread reduces friction to a minimum and gives added resiliency. Another important feature is the extremely good union between the breaker and the tread.

Coast tire beads are perfect, and the extra layers of fabric strengthen the side walls and prevent rim cuts. The special feature of our tire is its vacuum non-skid tread, designed upon scientific principles. There is just enough vacuum to the tread to practically eliminate skidding and not retard the progress of the car. The soft, pliable texture of the rubber has a clinging quality which grips the road.

Try a set of Coast Tires and you will agree with the thousands of satisfied customers that here at last is a NEW TIRE, possessing features that render them superior to any you have ever used before, and that under every condition they can be relied upon to give TRUE SERVICE.

FR. SERRA MEMORIAL CEREMONIES

Cornerstone Laying of First Unit of Restoration Plan

On Sunday, October second, a beautiful and unique ceremony and celebration will take place at San Carlos mission of Carmelo, the occasion being the laying of the corner stone of the old mission quadrangle.

It was hoped to have the ceremony on August 28th, which marked the one hundredth and thirty-seventh anniversary of the death of Father Junipero Serra, but the time being too brief to arrange all details the date was made to October second. The anniversary of the immortal Serra's death is commemorated in the notices which are being sent to the members of the Spanish Mission Restoration League. These notices are the artistic production of Rev. Raymond M. Mestres and J. J. Mora, the well known sculptor, whose work is so well known in the United States, and who is now working on the magnificent sarcophagus which will grace the tomb of Junipero Serra in Carmelo mission.

Mr. Mora made the illustrations on the notices and Rev. Father Mestres copied the writing of Junipero Serra, in the wording and used the facsimile of Serra's signature wherever his name occurs, a cut was made and the notices printed by the Pine Cone Press.

The celebration will consist of solemn high mass at ten a. m. followed by a pageant procession from the mission building to the scene where the corner stone is to be blessed and laid, and appropriate speeches will be made by prominent speakers, among them the Hon. Frank Drew, recently appointed Ambassador to Mexico. The afternoon will be devoted to an old time California barbecue. This celebration will be in charge of Rev. Raymond M. Mestres, the Spanish Mission Restoration League, and the Knights of Columbus.

That particular portion of the mission quadrangle which comprised a group of rooms built around the site of Serra's monastic cell and Serra's cell itself, is the portion of the quadrangle which will first be restored, and for which the corner stone will be laid. The cost of this group of rooms will be about fourteen thousand dollars. The Knights of Columbus of the state contributed five thousand and two hundred dollars of this sum, and the balance has been contributed by a few prominent members of the Spanish Mission League who represent old Spanish families

The Angel of Death visited San Carlos del Carmelo during the summer Año 1784 carrying away to its just reward the Soul of Fr Junipero Serra the Apostle of California.

This Historical Event will be celebrated this year Año 1921 with solemn Services to wit:

On October the 2nd At the hour of 10 A. M. High Mass with Gregorian Music & Chant Memorial Sermon on the Life of Serra immediately after this a Procession & Pageant.

At the end of this the Blessing & Laying of the Corner Stone for the Building to occupy the Site where the beloved Fr Serra died. R. I. P. this under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus and the Mission Restoration League.

A Barbecue will close the festivities of the day served by descendants of the Old Mission Indians: during which addresses will be made by prominent members of the K. of C. & M. P. L. - serious or facetious - as the will may dictate...

Knights of Columbus and Spanish Restoration League in Charge of the state. Also it is this league, numbering about two hundred members, which are steadily increasing and consisting not only of members of old California families, but of many others who are doing the splendid work. Donations of the members of the Mission League range from ten dollars to several thousand.

A brief statement of the work accomplished is as follows: All excavations have been completed, unearthing remnants of adobes and foundations of the quadrangle, which had been buried under six and seven feet of debris; many paintings and antiques of great value have been restored to the mission; almost all the material needed for the restoration work has been gathered and is at hand for the quick continuance of operations; more than 35,000 adobe bricks have been made in the mission grounds, and more are continuing to be made; five thousand tiles made by the firm of Gladding and McBean in San Francisco from a composition which Father Mestres found by experimenting would give the right mellow color of age to the tiles; also the old rectory of the mission, a fascinating little five-room house has been rebuilt from foundation to tile roof; several acres of mission property which had passed to other hands at various times have been bought, and many other items are the splendid record which the Spanish Mission League, under the leadership of Father Mestres has accomplished, and accomplished quietly.

The magnificent Serra sarcophagus which Mr. Mora is sculpturing will be the gift of families of Spanish origin, but the work of the mission proper, (the vault and roof will be changed) and the quadrangle buildings, of which there will be several, will be the gift of every lover of the old historical landmarks regardless of creed or racial origin. These old quadrangle buildings will be used for a museum and also as a Spanish mission hospice. The cost of each room in the quadrangle is estimated at one thousand dollars, and several families have given one thousand dollars for a memorial room to their family name. It is to be hoped that many more will do the same, especially families of California pioneers, taking opportunity to have their names perpetuated in a place like this—the cradle of Christianity and civilization on the Pacific Coast.

CARMEL A MUSICAL CENTER

With the coming here of Madam Irene Pavloska in concert Carmel definitely takes its place in the sun as a center of music. For long this city's position in painting, literature and drama has been established, but it is only in the last two years that attention has been attracted to us by reason of our interest in the field of music. Now, with the coming of a famous artist we should take great strides forward.

There should be organized here a society of those interested in music to assist the individuals who are now bearing the burden of putting us musically on the map.

We have teachers here, none better, whose lives are dedicated to music. They should be encouraged and assisted to form large classes, not only of resident Carmelenos, but from other places. Who knows but that at a not distant date there would be established in Carmel a wonderful Conservatory of Music.

Red Cross Worker Returns to Duty

Miss Charlotte Kett, a frequent visitor here, closed her vacation last week and returned to her duties as Acting Director of the Health Service of the Pacific Division of the Red Cross. She reports great interest throughout the country in the establishment of Health Centers, which is the branch of the service she makes her specialty. Three hundred and twenty-six such centers are now operating in the United States. Of these, thirty are in California. It is gratifying to note that Monterey county contributes three to this quota, in Salinas, Watsonville and Santa Cruz, where centers have developed around the splendid work of the local public health nurses.

These centers range from simple informational headquarters to large establishments conducting clinics, lectures and other health activities. The object of this nation-wide movement is to make the simple rules of hygienic living popular among young and old and thus to build up the vitality of the American people, which was found to be unwarrantably low at the time of the draft examinations.

One of the interesting novelties contributed by Miss Kett to this work is a health-teaching Punch and Judy show worked out with the time-honored scenario, but with new lines, which bring home health propaganda to young audiences, as mere book learning can never do. For instance, when Punch, in his beloved falsetto, demands to see the baby, Judy replies:

"I can't bring you the baby, Mr. Punch. I'm busy washing it."

Punch: "You wash that baby too often, Judy; you'll wear it all out in the wash."

Judy: "No, Mr. Punch, if I'm to keep the baby healthy, I have to wash it every day."

Infant feeding, garbage disposal and fly abatement are treated similarly in their turn.

The equipment for the performance is loaned to various Red Cross chapters for use at schools, fairs and health centers. Miss Grace Hamilton of this city devoted much time this spring coaching marionettes in their performance in order to bring out the finer dramatic points.

New Tire Agency Here

With the appointment of The Carmel Garage as direct factory representatives, the Coast Tire and Rubber Company, of Oakland, enters the local field in direct competition with the older established tire concerns of the country. The automobile owners of Carmel will welcome this new company and its product, as it is a California concern, employing California labor, and is making a tire that has made a record for real service that puts it on a par with the leading makes of America.

The company came to California, as the logical point for the manufacture of tires to be used on the Coast, as a large percentage of the rubber imported into America is received at Pacific Coast points, and California is producing the cotton best suited for tire fabric.

The men at the head of the company have built in Oakland a modern tire factory that is equipped with the latest improved machinery. The capacity of the present plant is 750 tires and 1000 tubes a day. So great is the demand that plans are already under way for additional units, with increased production. Coast tires are made in either cord or fabric, and have a non-skid feature that is considered superior to any on the market.

The Carmel Garage will be pleased to show the tires and have arranged to supply every style and size at all times.

Young People at La Playa Rancho

It was a perfect day in Carmel Valley last Sunday, and the fifty or sixty young people of Carmel, the Highlands and Pebble Beach who made the trip to La Playa Rancho had the time of their lives.

Almost the entire afternoon was devoted to three stirring baseball games, which resulted in two teams captained by Harrison Godwin coming out winner. William Ritschel proved himself a veritable "Babe Ruth," and were he twenty years younger would make "Bambino" look to his laurels.

Following a fine picnic supper, served in the dining room, the young folks devoted an hour to dancing to music furnished by David Prince and Franklin Murphy.

Three fine efforts were put forth in the commedia, staged in another building, the best of which was called "Cucco," and Miss Cornelia Clam-pett and Charles Van Riper surely made of it a cucco.

Officers Elected

The newly-elected Board of Directors of the Forest Theater Society met and organized last Monday evening at Arts and Crafts Hall. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Edward G. Kuster, President; Thomas V. Cator, Vice-President; Mrs. V. Mott Porter, Secretary; Wm. T. Kibbler, Treasurer and Business Manager.

Mrs. Edward A. Kluegel tendered her resignation as Director, and the Secretary was directed to express the appreciation of the society for Mrs. Kluegel's work. Miss Marian Boke was elected to fill the vacant place caused by Mrs. Kluegel's resignation.

It was then decided to name all of the Play-Committee from the Board of Directors in order to obtain greater co-ordination. Mr. Cator, acting chairman, appointed the following members of the Play Committee: Jeanne Burton, C. Sumner Greene, Marian Boke, Argyll Campbell, Mrs. V. Mott Porter.

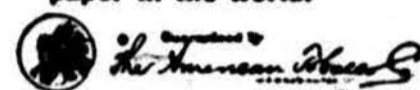

It was the sense of the meeting that the Play Committee should make an effort to secure original plays, and it was finally decided to offer a $100 prize for the best original play, the committee reserving the right to reject all plays submitted. The contest closes March 1, 1922.
